InfoStreet has announced that it is responding to market demand for improved workplace efficiencies with an enhanced software suite that will target small- to mid-sized businesses. Email is the ultimate delivery mechanism, however, tagging, categorizing, prioritizing and organizing conversation threads has become a new challenge, in particular when it is concerning tasks within an office. With StreetSmart's workflow, smart emails are generated that identify the task at hand, its due date, the person who it is assigned to, those involved in the task's development, the category, priority, and most important its status. In addition, users can look at their task inbox and tend to them based on priority, category, status and age.

The new generation of StreetSmart's workflow software offers tighter integration across applications. Built on the Asynchronous JavaScript and XML (AJAX) "engine," the new interface will provide improvement in speed and responsiveness and will give users a more streamlined workflow experience. In addition, InfoStreet will offer these StreetSmart upgrades at no additional charge to the company's current customers.
