InstantName.com to launch Tuesday

posted 12:25pm EST Mon Feb 26 2007 - submitted by Brian Osborne

BLURB

A new domain registration service will soon launch thanks to a partnership between InfoStreet and Register.com. InfoStreet is known for its StreetSmart software suite. The StreetSmart software suite is a Web based set of applications that is charged on a per user per day basis. InfoStreet also provides other online based services such as managed hosting.

The new venture for InfoStreet, to be launched Tuesday, will be InstantName.com. The website will only charge US$10 per year to register a domain when registered for two or more years. As an added benefit to customers, the website will also offer an e-mail account, Address Book, Website Builder, and Website Hosting for free to customers who register on InstantName.com.

$10 to register a domain name in addition to getting all the additional benefits offered by InstantName.com is a great deal. Considering the domain registration market is getting a little crowded registration, companies need to differentiate themselves. InstantName.com seems to be attempting to do just that.
